The pot-luck supper held last Saturday outside Raymond Hall was a huge success.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Perkins, ably assisted by Mr. Perkins and others, many luscious dishes were brought in and thoroughly enjoyed by about 125 people. Topped off by coffee, soft drinks and watermelon, it was a delightful occasion. Proceeds will be earmarked for normal expenses

The recent storm cut a freak caper. A lady's dress was blown off the clothesline and went sailing off to the moon. However, it caught in an earthly obstruction, namely a tree, and there it hung for all to behold. At this writing it is still there awaiting a rescue mission. I wonder who owns the dress J.B.?

YACHT CLUB RACES

Three racing events were scheduled at the Mattapoisett Club last week.

On Wednesday, August 7th, the first race in the August Junior Series was held with competition in two classes. Billy Mee's Irish Eyes was the winner for the Corinthians, and Phil McCarthy for the Beetle Cats.

Light winds from the northeast and east prevailed during the races.

Both classes followed the same course, starting from the race committee boat anchored in mid-harbor opposite Ned's Point, to the MYC Ned's Point guide buoy, to the Molly's Cove MYC guide buoy, to Sunken Ledge, and to finish.

In the Corinthian division Mee was followed over the finish line by Fred Klein's Iterate, with Chuck Ruel in Challenge, third.

In the Beetle Cat division David Donald in Eeyore finished second to Wolf. Ross' Happy Too was third.

EVENING SERIES

The third race in the Evening Series, postponed from Wednesday to Thursday, August 7th, because of lack of wind, listed Fred Klein in the Corinthian Iterate and Sue McGowan's Beetle Cat, Hep Cat II, as the winners.

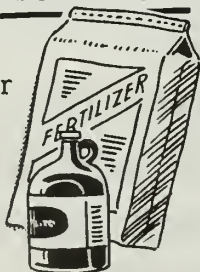

Both classes followed the same course, starting from the race committee boat anchored in mid-harbor opposite Ned's Point, from the race committee boat, went to Mattapoisett Neck MYC guide buoy, to the Crescent Beach MYC guide buoy, to Gallatin Rock Black Can 3, and back to finish at committee boat. McLean was the winner with Ruel second and Tom Clark's Instead third.

The course for the two Beetle Cat races was the same, starting at the race committee boat, going then to Mattapoisett Neck MYC guide buoy, to Barnard's Wharf MYC guide buoy, to Molly's Cove MYC guide buoy, and finishing at the race committee boat.

In the first race Jimmy Barnes in Gay-Lee-Ann II made a good port tack start and held the lead to the finish. Following Barnes during the first leg were Sue McGowan in Hep Cat II and Harvey Pentleton in Swamp Fox. Rounding the first marker, Swamp Fox edged into second place with Hep Cat II third. During the third leg, Hep Cat II broke a fitting in the rigging, but with quick temporary repairs managed to complete the course. Swamp Fox finished second with John Ross' Happy Too third.

In the second race, Barnes was the leader from the start with Ross second throughout the course. Third place went to Pentleton's Swamp Fox.

Letter to the Editor

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Mattapoisett Historical Society has many things of which it should be justly proud. There are items and displays which have been preserved and arranged for visitors to enjoy and also to learn of past history of your town.

Very recently, while visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Masterson, I had the privilege of touring this museum and its new carriage house. As we entered we were introduced to those in attendance. One of these was a young museum aid. He was asked to show me about. This assignment was a bit different from the run of the mill, because you see, I am blind. It was with utter amazement, on my part, that with the help of this young aid we progressed from one display to another with ease and with excellent explanations concerning the various articles. His knowledge of many of these displays made me very much aware of what your museum contains. I really did SEE the museum through the eyes of this young person. His perception of how best to guide a blind person was quite remarkable.

A high commendation to your Historical Society for having these students show to picture attracted much attention, and he painted another and afterwards a third picture depicting the same scenes.

It has been said "No picture is more familiar and yet less appreciated and less understood than is this picture of New Bedford fifty years ago." For this reason, we publish this description which has been carefully compiled from authoritative sources, quite a portion of it from a letter written by Mr. Wall to William Penn Howland January 10, 1859. These original paintings are still in existence in this city. The original lithograph reproductions were made by Endicott & Co., New York, and published by Charles Taber & Co. in 1858. Some were published in colors, others in plain black and white.

In 1892, the originals then being out of print, Charles Taber & Co. reproduced the picture, calling it "New Bedford in 1810", representing the "Old Four Corners", now the corner of Union and Water Streets, which was the business centre at that time.

The street extending across the picture from the lower right-hand corner to the left is Main Street, now Union Street, and the one branching off to the right is Water Street. The large building in the foreground was occupied for general business purposes. Leonard Macomber occupying the corner store as a shoemaker shop, while Jahaizel Jenney kept a general merchandise store next west. The barber shop on the Water street side was kept by Nathaniel Rogers. This building was occupied as early at 1785 as a West India Goods Store by Uriah Rea & Co. The brick building now on that corner was erected in 1819.

A flag raised on this building indicated some holiday, on this occasion it was "Engine Day", when the village fire department was out for exercise. The old engine "Independence, No. 1" is shown further up Main Street, surrounded by her company. Her home was on the north side of what is now William Street, on the site of the Robeson building.

The old market shed next westerly was built in 1795 by Barnabas Russell for his son Joseph, who occupied it as a market.

Capt. Nathaniel Cole is represented in the picture bending over the meat bench. The market was demolished about 1817. The next store is James Bosworth's shoemaker shop, then comes a dwelling house, and next west is George Sisson's grocery store in the three story building which was erected in 1792 and still stands on the corner of Union and Bethel Streets.

Next west is the town pound. The last building shown was the mansion of William Rotch, Sr., now the Mansion House, which with its spacious grounds and tall poplar trees in front, was one of the most prominent estates in the village. Its owner was a son of the original Joseph Rotch, one of the founders of New Bedford's whaling industries. Mr. James Harper in his description of the picture says, "The brick ends of the Mansion house were built by two old masons named East and West, each one of whom was familiarly known as "Daddy". "Daddy East" built the west end and "Daddy West" built the east end."

To the northward of the old town pound rises "Prospect" or "Jonnycake Hill". The house north of it still stands, but beyond this the hill was but little settled. On "Jonnycake Hill" stood the schoolhouse kept by Thomas Kempton.

On Water Street north of Union, considerable business was done. Over Charles Ricketson's clothing store was Judge Russell's law office. William Rotch, Jr's house, now the Seamen's Bethel, stood on the west side of Water Street near William Street. On the east side of Water Street was the apothecary shop of Job Otis. On the corner which just shows in the picture, was the watch and clock store of Josiah Wood & Son. The building on Union Street next east was the book store of Abraham Shearman. On the southeast corner of Union and Water Streets, from where the view was taken, stood the "Hotel Nach", later "Washington Hotel", since raised and changed into a business block.

The woman crossing the street is "Patty Hussey", who lived in the building on the southwest corner of Union and Water Streets, in the southeast corner of which she kept a little shop. This building still stands on the same corner.

Even the figures in the picture are delineations of well-known citizens of that time. The central figure, the old gentleman in the "leathern conveniency", is William Rotch, Sr. This chaise was imported from England, and was the only private carriage owned in the town at that time. He is negotiating with Caleb Sherman, who lived on the Dartmouth Road, for the load of hay. The large man in the centre of Water Street is William Rotch, Jr., the leading merchant of the town. The man in conversation with him is Abraham Russell, son of the original Joseph Russell, who founded the town.

COOL IT

There has been a noticeable increase in the number of cars with young drivers being gunned through Mattapoisett. The enthusiasm of showing off the wheels is understandable but it will be a shame if a tragedy results. If cars are tooled through the narrow streets of the village at present speeds someone is going to be hurt, or worse, soon. DCJ

PUPPETEER TO BE AT MARION METHODIST FAIR

Johnny Sisson, the Children's Entertainer, will present three of his Puppet Plays for Children on Saturday, August 16th, at 11:30, 12:30 and 1:30 at the Serendipity Fair, sponsored by the Marion United Methodist Church. Sisson is a performer who remembers what it is like to be a child; thus, he knows what children like and dislike. He knows they like to take an active part in his shows, and on the other hand, resent being patronized by the type of grown-up who introduces him with "now kidde-e-e-e-s, let's all be as quiet as little mice..." He encourages his young audiences to feel the show is theirs to enjoy and to speak up, without getting out of hand, when the plot calls for it. Since the plays are "presented Live" the children can, and do, talk with the puppets. They tell the puppets when something is wrong, help them when they don't quite know what to do next, become fellow-conspirators as they send secret signals to them, shout warnings at the approach of villains and

ELEGANT NO-BAKE TARTS MAKE ENTERTAINING EASY

During the summer, indoor entertaining sometimes takes the spotlight from backyard barbecues. This usually calls for a more formal menu but the preparation needn't be more extravagant. The dessert, which often occurs as an afterthought in menu planning, can be elegant in appearance yet effortless to prepare with this no-bake recipe.

These Raspberry Cobbler Tarts fall in the realm of quick-and-easy desserts. With only a few ingredients and using packaged tart shells, you can have a very special dessert in a matter of minutes. Just add Junior Raspberry Cobbler and cottage cheese to dissolved raspberry gelatin and blend. Fill the tart shells and chill until you're ready to serve.

Next time you want a glamorous after-dinner treat, try Raspberry Cobbler Tarts. Serve them with coffee and an assortment of thin mints, and get ready for a round of applause!

RASPBERRY COBBLER TARTS

- 1 package (3 ounce) raspberry flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 container (1 pound) small curd cottage cheese
- 2 jars Gerber Junior Raspberry Cobbler
